LAST WEEK OF THE Administrator's Shoe Sale

and we wish to make it a record breaker, and our prices seem to be doing it by the way the people have come to us in the last ten days. It was just what they wanted at this time to make their money go as far as possible by having the chance to buy good shoes at cost and less than cost, but we were bound to reduce our stock if low prices will do it. Now this week we will clip the low price again on many lines and try and clean out before inventory on February 1st. Everything goes in the sale and you will blame yourself if you do not profit by it this week.

What Should She Say?

"I tell you, little wife, you can't imagine how lonesome I am when I am separated from you. You are the best little woman in the world, so different from Drigg's nagging and scolding wife. You know that a man must get ahead in the world and be free to give his business his full attention. My little girl isn't of the suspicious, doubting kind, is she? Why, dearest, this very night I ought to go down to the club. Brown of Brown, Kallio & Co. is in town. They're among our best customers. Ought to know him socially, didn't I? But unless you insist, my little sweetheart wife, I won't go. It may mean a loss to the firm, but I'll stay with my precious."

Well, now, what can a woman do? —Chicago Journal.

No Chance in History.

Mazzini said that he did not believe that chance existed in history. "A cause must necessarily underlie every event, although for the moment it may appear as the result of apparently accidental circumstances. An Alexander, a Caesar, a Napoleon, are not the results of accident, but the inevitable product of the time and nation from which they spring. It was not Caesar who destroyed the Roman republic. The republic was dead before Caesar came. Sulla, Marius, Catiline, preceded and foreshadowed Caesar, but he, gifted with keener insight and greater genius, snatched the power from them and concentrated it in his own hands. For there was no doubt that he was fitter to rule than all the others put together. At the same time, supposing he had appeared 150 years earlier, he would not have succeeded in destroying the republic. When he came the life had already gone out of it, and even Caesar's death could not restore that."

Two excellent Biographs are on the boards to-night at Dreamland. "The Day After" is one in the true Biograph style, fascinating and intensely interesting. Some very fashionable society folk indulge too much of the wine when it is red, and cut up some queer stunts. Another picture is, "Choosing a Husband," which minutely describes how some would-be husbands were neatly caught in infidelity.

Various amateur astronomers in this city were busy early last evening viewing the new comet, known temporarily as "Comet A 1910," which was clearly visible to the naked eye. It was seen shortly after sundown and "just over Billy Quinlan's barn" as one of the observers said, or in the southwestern sky. A brilliant "tail" trailed after the comet and made its discovery easy. It was located to the north of, and below, the evening star, and those who care to look can see it for several evenings, provided the calculations of the astronomers are correct. The comet was nearest the sun on January 17. Its distance being then 3,000,000 miles from the sun, which may satisfy the reasonings of some amateur observers who expected to see the thing move and didn't.

Victorian Gods.

If Thackeray, with a brain weighing fifty-eight and one-half ounces, had the biggest head among Victorian writers who had the best features? The choice would seem to lie between Tennyson and Henry Taylor. "That man must be a poet," remarked one of his Cambridge contemporaries, when he first saw Tennyson come into the hall at Trinity, and another friend describes him in his undergraduate days as six feet high, broad chested, strong limbed, his face Shakespearean, with deep eyelids; his forehead ample, crowned with dark wavy hair; his head finely poised, his hand the admiration of sculptors. But time dealt none too gently with Tennyson, whereas Henry Taylor, always a distinguished looking man, seems to have grown singularly majestic with years. Grant Duff, meeting him when he was over eighty, notes that "Taylor looks more like Jupiter than ever," and contemporary memoirs are full of references to his Jove-like appearance.—London Standard.
